Yemen Salt Pans

Come & Discover 'Les Salines de Yemen' which is a small salt farm situated at the entrance of Tamarin in the South West of Mauritius, constructed during the French Period. More than 100 years old, these buildings & these traditions mesmerize Mauritians & tourists who want to preserve the salt works. Indeed, from generations to generations, sea salt has been harvested in a homemade and traditional way, in collaboration with the families of the village. Do not miss this chance to visit this beautiful site, where you can also find some souvenirs in the shop. Moreover, the Tamarin salt works is one of the most emblematic places in the Mauritian landscape.

Which is a symbol of the country's authenticity and cultural richness. It is a true national heritage! Come & Immerse yourself in this splendid voyage in the past with us!

Le Morne UNESCO World Heritage Site

Le Morne Cultural Landscape, a rugged mountain that juts into the Indian Ocean in the southwest of Mauritius was used as a shelter by runaway slaves, maroons, through the 18th and early years of the 19th centuries. Protected by the mountain's isolated, wooded and almost inaccessible cliffs, the escaped slaves formed small settlements in the caves and on the summit of Le Morne. The oral traditions associated with the maroons, have made Le Morne a symbol of the slaves' fight for freedom, their suffering, and their sacrifice, all of which have relevance to the countries from which the slaves came -the African mainland, Madagascar, India, and South-east Asia. Indeed, Mauritius, an important stopover in the eastern slave trade, also came to be known as the "Maroon republic" because of the large number of escaped slaves who lived on Le Morne Mountain.

Macondé

Macondé is located in the south west of Mauritius, between Le Morne and Baie du Cap and the name originates after the governor Jean Baptiste Henri Condé who had build an outlook on the rock long time ago. Today Macondé, together with the surrounding coastal roads, is a very scenic place where you will enjoy the breath taking views by climbing up the narrow stairs to the district boundary marker dating from 1878.

Located in Port-Louis, Apravasi Ghat was the first immigration office in Mauritius and covers an area of 1,640 m². Built in 1849 by the British government, Apravasi Ghat is a historical site through which nearly half a million immigrants from India, Eastern Africa, Madagascar, China and Southeast Asia transited, from 1849 to 1920, to work in sugar plantations as indentured labourers. Nearly 70% of Mauritians can trace their roots back to Apravasi Ghat. Some of the original stone buildings can still be found on the site and there are strategically placed life-sized models of the immigrants. The site was listed as a World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 2006 for its crucial role in the island's social history.
